On Sunday, Round House released a statement of support for the protesters who continue to express outrage over the murders of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, Ahmaud Arbery, and others at the hands of police officers.

Today, we observe #BlackoutTuesday, a day of solidarity with the Black community.

This week, Round House will pause our business-as-usual operations. This will include the cancellation of Thursday's Playwrights on Plays event, postponement of the Weekly Quarantini, and the postponement of production of next week's episode of Homebound.

We pause to give our artists, our staff, and our community the space to breathe, listen, learn, grieve, and care for themselves and their loved ones. We stand with the protesters and the communities they fight for. We cannot move forward without taking a moment to reflect and hold space.
